HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated To Tired Mother As They Join The Home Circle At Evening Tide.

The path is easy that is paved with love.

Better sweetness in the heart than greatness in the mind.

Life is not measured by length of days, but by depth of deeds.

It is of no consequence how good a man is abroad if he is really mean at home.

Home is the residence not merely of the body, but of the heart; it is a place for the affections to unfold and develop themselves; for the children to love, and learn, and play in; for husband and wife to toll smilingly together, and make life a blessing. The object of all ambition should be to be happy at home. If we are not happy there we cannot be elsewhere; it is the best proof of the virtues of a family circle to see a happy fireside.

Man is naturally a home-loving animal. In fact, most animals are home-loving. And when a man asks a woman to share his life, it is usually taken as a gentle hint that he wants her to make him a home and take a sort of general oversight of his affairs and a special oversight of himself. He likes to know that she does things for him just for the reason that she loves him, and is interested in him and his well-being. He loves his home more if there is some impress of her personality upon it. He likes best when meal she prepares for him. Of course he says very little—perhaps nothing—of all this, being a man.

In too many families the mother assumes the care of everything and her daughters are but guested loungers in the household. The work which could be so easily and quickly done if each bore a share, is left for the hands already weakened by heavy burdens, and when at last the poor household drudge dies at her post, she is remembered with pity unmingled with contempt because she resigned the post of ruler of the household to become its slave, and her daughters are left to ruin other homes with idleness and ignorance. But there are no such daughters among our households.

A man and wife when irritated will often say things to each other for which they are sorry the next morning, but pride often keeps them confessing their faults, and the little differences grow until a divorce suit or an assault and battery case results. When you have made a mistake, be a man or woman enough to ask forgiveness, and you will sail along on flowery beds of ease instead of jolting over the rocky beds of discord.

No boy, no girl, can ever come to be utterly bad who remembers only love and tenderness and sweetness as associated with father and mother in the old-time home. Give them manly and womanly example, give them training, give them the inspiration of devoted lives, give them these higher deeper things. Do not care too much as to whether you are accumulating money, so that you can leave them in fortune. We really believe that the chances are against that being a blessing for a boy. But leave them an accumulated fortune of memories and inspirations and examples and hopes, so that they are rich in brain and heart and soul. Then if you happen to leave them a fortune besides, if they have all these, the fortune will be shorn of its possibilities of evil, and will become an instrument of higher and nobler good.

After all that has been said about rare treasures of art and nature that may lend attraction to a home that the fairest home ornaments are bright joyous faces; and where these are wanting, all else goes for little. Bright and joyous faces always accompany warm and loving hearts which all true home-makers must possess. Hence all who intend making homes should look carefully into their own hearts; for only when these are right can they expect their home-making to prove satisfactory. Warm hearts make bright and cheerful hearths, but the warmest hearth cannot thaw the icy heart. Love is a great home-maker, that makes even the drudgery of house-keeping a pleasure, and home life a foretaste of the bliss of heaven. One cannot get too much love into one's home-making, but easily too little.

Voluntary obedience in the home and not compulsion, is what is wanted; and the parents that are very even-tempered, not harsh or unjust, are teaching this lesson most successfully. A mother and father that have not learned self-control, are not capable of controlling children. It is a burdensome thing to many to lead a child the way it should go, for it is very necessary that parents follow the same path; we can't preach any more than we live, and the sermons from which the child draws his ideas takes place in the home—no teacher, no minister can do the parent's work. Your child has a body, mind and heart, in your keeping; if you do your work well, when life's fitful fever shall have passed, for you, the memory of your children will go back to you, with gratitude that they were sent out in the world with sound bodies, cultivated minds, and pure hearts.

"BE COURTEOUS" AT HOME.

Why not be polite? How much does it cost to say, "thank you?" Why not practice it at home—to your husband, to your wife, to your children, to your domestics? If a stranger does you some little act of courtesy, how sweet the smiling acknowledgment. If your husband or wife, ah, "it's a matter of course" no need of thanks. Should a visitor or acquaintance tread on your dress—your best, very best—and by accident tear it, how profuse you are with your "Never minds," "Don't think of it," "Accidents will happen." If a husband does it, he gets a frown if a child, it is punished. Ah, these are little things, say you. They all tell mightily upon the heart, let me assure you; and little as they are, they disturb peace or create pleasure in the family circle. A gentleman stops at a friend's house and finds it in confusion. He does not see anything to apologize for—"never thinks of such matters." Everything is right, cold supper, cold room, crying children—"perfectly comfortable." Goes home, where his wife has been taking care of children or attending the sick, and working her life almost out. Then he does not see why things can't be kept in order; "there never were such cross children before." No apologies excepted at home. Oh, why not look at the many side at home as well as abroad, and try pleasant words instead of surly ones. Why not be agreeable at home. Why not use freely the golden coin of courtesy. How sweetly those little words sound. "Many thanks," or "You are very kind." Doubtless, yes, thrice sweet from the lips we love, when smiles make the eyes sparkle with the light of affection. Be polite to your children. Be courteous to your servants. Do you expect them to be mindful of your welfare, to grow glad at your approach, to bound away to do your pleasure before the request is half spoken? Then, with all your authority, mingle kindness and cheerfulness. Brothers and sisters, be amiable, be courteous among yourselves and your servants.

FORCED INTO EXILE.

Wm. Upchurch of Glen Oak Okla, was an exile from home. Mountain air, he thought would cure a frightful lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infallible for coughs and colds, it dispels Hoarseness and Sore Throat, Cures Grip, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Etc. and $1.00, trial bottle free, guaranteed by A. M.
